Friday: The Day Everything Counts!

Unlike other Alliance Duel days in Last Z: Survival Shooter, Friday rewards a wide variety of activities.

Monday focuses on vehicles, Wednesday emphasizes science, and other days reward specific upgrades.

Friday is different. Almost everything scores!

Holistic Growth Day gives players an opportunity to earn points from resources and activities that may not have fit into earlier scoring days.

What Scores on Friday?

The following activities contribute to Friday's Alliance Duel score:

- Troop Training: Train new troops.
- Troop Assembly: Assemble troops to strengthen your army.
- Troop Promotion: Upgrade existing troops to higher tiers.
- Speedups: Use speedups of any type, not just training speedups.
- Radar Tasks: Claim eligible radar task rewards.
- Structure Power: Increase power through building upgrades.

- Science Power: Increase power through research.

Friday is one of the most flexible scoring days of the week.

The Golden Rule: Every Item Has a Home

Just because an item scores on Friday does not mean Friday is always the best day to use it.

For maximum value, prioritize items on their designated Alliance Duel days.

Item or Activity	Preferred Day
Building Speedups	Tuesday — Building Day
Research Speedups & Badges	Wednesday — Science Day
Hero Fragments & Equipment	Thursday — Hero Day
Leftover Speedups	Friday — Holistic Growth

Friday Is Your Safety Net

Friday is the day to use resources that did not fit into your earlier scoring plans.

Have a collection of random speedups remaining? Friday can put them to work.

Forgot to use an eligible item earlier in the week? Friday may offer another scoring opportunity.

Important: Don't intentionally waste valuable resources earlier in the week just to save everything for Friday. Use each item on its best scoring day whenever possible.

Friday Strategy Checklist

1. Review your inventory for leftover speedups.
2. Identify upgrades that can increase structure or science power.
3. Check which troop training and promotion activities are available.
4. Prepare eligible radar task rewards for Friday.
5. Save resources with better scoring opportunities on other days when practical.

Remember: Every item has a home. Use it there first — Friday catches what remains!

Radar Rewards & Troop Preparation

Introduction

Friday offers another opportunity to earn valuable Alliance Duel points through radar tasks and troop development.

With Saturday's Enemy Buster and Capital Clash approaching, Friday is also the perfect time to strengthen your army.

The goal is simple: Score points today while preparing to fight tomorrow!

Friday — The Second Radar Day

Friday is the second radar scoring day of the week, following Monday.

Radar tasks are an important source of Alliance Duel points, but collecting rewards at the wrong time can waste scoring opportunities.

Save Thursday's Radar Rewards

To maximize Friday's radar points:

1. Complete eligible radar tasks on Thursday.
2. Leave their rewards unclaimed when possible.
3. Wait until Friday's Alliance Duel scoring period begins.
4. Claim the saved rewards during Friday's event.
5. Continue completing eligible radar tasks for additional points.

Important: Do not collect Thursday's saved radar rewards early!

Timing your claims correctly allows you to gain more value from activities you have already completed.

Troops: Friday Feeds Saturday

Saturday brings two major combat events:

- Enemy Buster
- Capital Clash

Both require a strong, prepared army.

Friday rewards troop development, making it an excellent opportunity to strengthen your formations before battle.

What Troop Activities Score?

- Training: Recruit new troops to expand your army.
- Assembly: Assemble troops to improve your available fighting force.
- Promotion: Upgrade existing troops to stronger tiers.

These actions help earn Friday Alliance Duel points while preparing your army for Saturday.

One Action, Two Days of Value

Every troop you train on Friday can provide two benefits:

Friday: Earn Alliance Duel points through troop training and development.

Saturday: Use those troops in Enemy Buster and Capital Clash.

You gain scoring value today and additional combat strength tomorrow.

Train for Strength, Not Just Points

Avoid training large numbers of weak, low-tier troops solely to increase your Alliance Duel score.

An army built only for points may struggle during Saturday's battles.

Instead:

1. Prioritize troops suitable for your main fighting formations.
2. Promote existing troops when beneficial.
3. Strengthen your army with troops you intend to use.
4. Prepare your formations for Saturday's combat.

Remember: Train what you will actually fight with!

Friday Preparation Checklist

- Save Thursday's radar rewards for Friday.
- Claim eligible radar rewards during Friday's scoring period.
- Train, assemble, and promote troops.
- Prioritize combat-ready troops over unnecessary low-tier units.
- Prepare your army for Saturday's events.

Score on Friday. Fight on Saturday. Make every troop count!

Army Expansion & Friday Mistakes

Day: Friday — Holistic Growth

Introduction

Friday is one of the most flexible scoring days in Alliance Duel, but timing your actions correctly can make a major difference.

By combining Friday's Alliance Duel activities with Full Preparedness, you can earn rewards from two events using the same resources.

The secret is simple: Spend during the right event windows!

Full Preparedness — Army Expansion

Friday's matching Full Preparedness theme is Army Expansion.

These windows are especially valuable because troop-related activities can contribute to both Alliance Duel and Full Preparedness.

How to Find Your Army Expansion Windows

1. Open the Event Calendar in Last Z.

2. Tap the LOCAL TIME button at the top.
3. The calendar will display event times in your own time zone.
4. Locate Friday's Army Expansion blocks.
5. Plan your troop training and other eligible activities around those windows.

You don't need to calculate time-zone differences manually when using the Local Time option.

One Action — Two Rewards

When Army Expansion overlaps with Friday's Alliance Duel scoring period, eligible troop activities can contribute to both events.

For example:

- Train troops during an Army Expansion window.
- Earn Friday Alliance Duel points.
- Earn Full Preparedness points from the same eligible activity.
- Strengthen your army for Saturday's battles.

Two rewards. One action. Better resource efficiency!

Always check the current event requirements before spending valuable items.

The Four Friday Mistakes

Mistake 1 — Spending Everything Too Early

Using all your resources on earlier days can leave you with nothing for Friday.

Better Strategy: Save useful leftover items while still prioritizing their best scoring days.

Mistake 2 — Claiming Radar Rewards on Thursday

Collecting Thursday's radar rewards too early can cost you Friday Alliance Duel points.

Better Strategy: Save eligible radar claims for Friday's scoring period.

Mistake 3 — Using Specialized Speedups on Friday

Building and research speedups may provide better scoring opportunities earlier in the week.

Better Strategy: Prioritize building speedups on Tuesday and research speedups on Wednesday. Use Friday for suitable leftovers.

Mistake 4 — Training Troops but Skipping Saturday

Training an army on Friday is only part of the strategy.

Better Strategy: Prepare combat-ready troops and participate in Saturday's Enemy Buster and Capital Clash activities.

Final Friday Checklist

Before finishing Holistic Growth Day:

- Review your inventory for leftover resources and speedups.
- Claim eligible saved radar rewards.
- Find Army Expansion windows using Local Time.
- Train, assemble, or promote troops during matching scoring windows.
- Prepare your formations for Saturday.
- Avoid wasting valuable items outside their best scoring opportunities.

Friday's Final Lesson

Friday rewards smart preparation and efficient spending.

Use each item on its best day, take advantage of overlapping events, and build an army that is ready to fight.

Friday is your safety net. Saturday is where your preparation pays off!
